JUDAISM in MUSIC Wagner for the 21st Century

Musical genius, political activist, brilliant writer—that was the 19-century German composer Richard Wagner. Wagner wrote with the same intensity that characterized his powerful music. The two Wagner essays presented in this updated and expanded edition of Judaism in Music were published during the 1850s and 1860s, the period when Wagner was creating “The Ring of the Nibelung” series of operas. In 1850, Wagner penned an article entitled “Judaism in Music,” which caused such a firestorm that in 1869 he published an unapologetic letter entitled “Some Explanations Concerning Judaism in Music.”

This volume includes an introduction by Australian Revisionist historian Dr. Fredrick Töben and concludes with an essay correcting the historical record about Wagner written by the late Andrew Gray. As an added bonus, we have included Mark Twain’s remembrances of the time he went to hear Wagner performed at Bayreuth. This special edition of Judaism in Music was compiled and edited by TBR assistant editor Ronald L. Ray. NEW evidence in a fraud and dishonesty case against Clive Palmer shows he used Chinese cash to funnel $6 million to the coffers of his Palmer United Party and $97,000 to pay a credit card bill, using funds that were meant to pay for the operations of a remote port.

The PUP founder drew a cheque for $6m on August 8 last year and directed it to the bank account of his political party, one month before the federal election in which he narrowly won the seat of Fairfax on the Sunshine Coast and his party secured the balance of power in the Senate.

China's state-owned international investment company, which accuses Mr Palmer of dishonesty and fraud, filed documents in the Supreme Court in Brisbane yesterday that reveal all of the details of a series of cheques drawn by the resources tycoon for his personal and political benefit after he took $10m from a bank account, called "Port Palmer Operations".

The funds in the National Australia Bank Port Palmer Operations account were meant to pay for operating costs at the West Australian port of Cape Preston, which Mr Palmer's company Mineralogy was neither in possession of nor operating at the time the money was taken.

The new evidence shows that after the August 8 cheque for $6m to the PUP, Mr Palmer paid a further $799,763 and $1,247,844 to a Brisbane agency, Media Circus Network, for its role in buying advertising for PUP before the election. Media Circus, separately, received another $2.167m from the Port Palmer Operations account.

Mr Palmer also made a withdrawal of $97,348 on September 19 last year to purchase a bank cheque that was then used to pay a bill to American Express.

The financial disclosures show Mr Palmer was also directing large sums into other companies that he controlled: Waratah Coal Pty Ltd, which manages his coal leases in Queensland's Galilee Basin; his flagship company, Mineralogy; and Cold Mountain Stud Pty Ltd. A cheque for $300,000 went to Mineralogy on August 21 last year, and a further $250,000 went to the company a fortnight later on September 4.

Another cheque for $250,000 favoured Waratah Coal, and two cheques depositing $440,000 back into the Port Palmer Operations account on September 4 — one for $240,000 and the next for $200,000 — put it back into credit after it had been overdrawn.

Mr Palmer, who has trademarked hundreds of names, made an international telegraphic transfer on September 16 last year of $233,352 to the World Intellectual Property Organisation.

On the same day he drew another cheque, for $144,170, to Waratah Pty Ltd. Two days later, on September 18, he drew a cheque for cash of $25,000.

Mr Palmer ensured that Mineralogy, which employs and pays the salaries of many of his staff, received a further $155,000 on September 24 last year. Two days later he paid $250,000 to the company that employed Zhenya Wang, Australasian Resources Ltd, prior to his successful campaign to win a West Australian Senate seat.

Two relatively small cheques — one for $5799 to PIRSA, understood to be a South Australia government department, and another for $6000 to a C. Pepson — have also been drawn from the funds.

The Weekend Australian revealed last Saturday that Mr Palmer had falsely backdated by 11 months a document, titled "Port Management Services Agreement", which purported to give his companies a contractual right to the funds to pay for port services to the value of $12m.

Mr Palmer has admitted in his formal legal defence that contrary to the purported date of June 1, 2013, on the document that he signed and executed, he in fact prepared and created it in April or May this year, after he was put on notice that there would a rigorous investigation of his withdrawals of more than $12m.

He has said the controversial backdated document gave force to an earlier "oral agreement" between himself and his companies and staff, but the Chinese companies have instructed their lawyers to describe it as a "sham transaction" and part of a deliberate fraud.

The document has misled the Supreme Court and quasi-confidential arbitration proceedings as it was tendered as legitimate evidence by Mr Palmer's lawyers.

Mr Palmer's company had previously told the Chinese that their $12m was spent on "port management services", but the details in the cheque transactions show that the funds were spent on interests distinct and separate to the port.

The seriousness of the allegations in China's legal actions against Mr Palmer, who as the first defendant will face a Supreme Court civil trial in Brisbane from November 26, mean that the claims of fraud and dishonesty are likely to be referred to police.

Mr Palmer has repeatedly and emphatically denied wrongdoing, and has accused News Corp, publisher of The Weekend Australian, and its chairman, Rupert Murdoch, of running a deliberate campaign against him.

In their legal reply yesterday, the Chinese state-owned companies in the Citic Pacific group disclosed that, two weeks ago, Mr Palmer's Mineralogy wrote to say that it "wishes to make an unconditional payment" of $12,167,065.60. A follow-up letter from Mr Palmer's side "indicated the payment (offer) did not constitute an offer to settle the proceeding". The offer was rejected by the Chinese companies.

The legal action by the Beijing-controlled companies seeks declarations from the Supreme Court including "that Palmer dishonestly procured or was involved in" a breach of trust, and that he knowingly assisted his company "in its dishonest and fraudulent breach of trust".

HISTORY & ORIGIN OF THE 6,000,000 NUMBER SCRIPTURAL ORIGINS OF THE SIX MILLION NUMBER

The following are two quotes from unpublished sources whose content I have tried -- so far unsuccessfully -- to have verified by rabbinical scholars. I suspect that their ultimate source is the book The Holocaust Dogma of Judaism by Ben Weintraub. The meaning of the second quote is made clearer if one understands something about Gematria, the Kabbalistic practice of interpreting texts by associating words and numbers. This material by itself does not prove the scriptural origins of the Six Million, but in combination with the fact that the number was used in other places (see below), this seems to clinch the case.

[Quote 1] Jewish prophecies in the Torah require that 6 million Jews must "vanish" before the state of Israel can be formed. "You shall return minus 6 million." That's why Tom Segev, an Israeli historian, declared that the "6 million" is an attempt to transform the Holocaust story into state religion. Those six million, according to prophecy, had to disappear in "burning ovens", which the judicial version of the Holocaust now authenticates. As a matter of fact, Robert B. Goldmann writes: ". . . without the Holocaust, there would be no Jewish State." A simple consequence: Given six million Jews gassed at Auschwitz who ended up in the "burning ovens" (the Greek word holocaust means burned offerings), therefore, the prophecies have now been "fulfilled" and Israel can become a "legitimate state". --Unknown

[Quote 2] Regarding the 'six million' number you should know the following: In the Hebrew text of the Torah prophecies, one can read "you shall return". In the text the letter "V" or "VAU" is absent, as Hebrew does not have any numbers; the letter V stands for the number 6. Ben Weintraub, a religious scientist, learned from rabbis that the meaning of the missing letter means the number is '6 million'. The prophesy then reads: You will return, but with 6 million less. See Ben Weintraub: The Holocaust Dogma of Judaism, Cosmo Publishing, Washington 1995, page 3. The missing 6 million must be so before the Jews can return to the Promised Land. Jahweh sees this as a cleaning of the souls of the sinful people. The Jews must, on the return to the Promised Land, be clean -- the cleaning shall be done in burning stokes. --Unknown

HOLOCAUST WAS THE MURDER OF SIX MILLION JEWS BY RABBI DR. BERNHARD ROSENBERG CONGREGATION BETH EL, EDISON, NJ

The Holocaust is the systematic mass murder of European Jewry by the Nazis. The term Holocaust literally means a fire that causes total destruction. Yehuda Bauer, one of the world's most eminent historians of the Holocaust, differentiates between the term genocide and Holocaust by defining the term genocide as partial murder.

While there have been numerous instances of genocide, the total annihilation of a people was never an officially sanctioned purpose of a national government as it was in Nazi Germany. It is precisely this which differentiates the Nazi action against the Jews from other genocidal attempts against a people.

The Nazis wished to conquer the world and therefore threatened the very existence of every single Jew in the world. The principle target of the Nazis was always the Jews. Yes, it is true that as many as 50 million human beings were murdered by the Nazis and their collaborators. The Nazis destroyed the lives of Gypsies, homosexuals, the mentally disabled, Jehovah's Witnesses, communists, socialists, trade unionists and religious opponents. But it was only the Jews who were singled out for the Final Solution.

The Jews, according to Hitler were maggots, a virus that had to be eliminated. Hitler saw himself as the German Messiah doing God's work by destroying the Jew. Let us not forget that all people with three or four Jewish grandparents were sentenced to death. Regarding the Polish population, there were no plans for total annihilation. Slavs were looked upon as being inferior Aryans; however Slovaks, Croats, and Bulgarians were Slavs who served as German allies, It was only the Jew that Hitler and the Nazis considered to be like the Devil and therefore inhuman. In the Jew Hitler saw the image of Satan. According to Hitler it was only the Jew who wished to dominate the world, and it was the Jew Hitler wanted to destroy.

Hitler and the Nazis created a policy of selective mass murder against the homosexuals, Gypsies, Poles, Russians, prisoners of war, Catholic priests, Jehovah's Witnesses', the physically and mentally disabled, dissidents and others. But it was the Jew that was seen as a virus, a bacillus that had to be destroyed before it infected the entire world. It was the Jews who poisoned the mind of mankind. The policy of making the world Judenrein applied to the entire world. The group Hitler hated above all was the Jews. He made himself the supreme racist.

In his final hours, Hitler continued to urge the destruction of the Jew. Hitler had diverted trains and soldiers to Concentration camps when he desperately needed them for the war effort. Germany was destroyed due to this mad man and at the end all he could think about was murdering more Jews.

This mad man was responsible for the murder of my grandparents, two siblings, uncles, aunts, and cousins. My father, Jacob, of blessed memory survived Auschwitz and my mother, Rachel of blessed memory, survived Skazyskokarmiene. I became a Rabbi to do everything in my power to prevent another Holocaust and to teach the world the lessons of the Holocaust. My fear is that after the death of the final Holocaust survivor and eventually the death of the children of Holocaust survivors, history will be re-written and the Holocaust will no longer be a Jewish issue but rather a universal one. The number will no longer be The 6 million Jews but rather or 50 million casualties of war. Many still persist in saying there were six million Jews and 5 million non- Jews who were exterminated by the Nazis. We all should mourn and honor those who fought and died, Jew and non-Jew alike. However, let us never forget and always remember that it was the Jews who were the primary target of Hitler and the Nazi regime. The historian Yehudah Bauer wrote; ' Simon Wiesenthal, as he admitted to me in private,(invented the figure six million Jews and five million non-Jews) in order to create sympathy for the Jews- in order to make the non-Jews feel they are part of us.'

I was born in a displaced persons camp in Germany of Polish parents. I came to America as a refugee. I pray that the Holocaust and the memory of those who perished will be kept alive by our grandchildren and future generations.

LET US NOT DILUTE THE MEMORY OF THE HOLOCAUST BY STRESSING HOLOCAUST AND GENOCIDE. WHILE IT IS IMPORTANT TO STRESS THAT WE SHOULD NEVER BE INNOCENT BYSTANDERS WHILE OTHERS ARE MURDERED OR DISCRIMINATED AGAINST, WE ALSO SHOULD NEVER DILUTE THE SINGULAR SIGNIFICANCE OF THE HOLOCAUST. I FEAR THAT 50 YEARS FROM NOW THE HOLOCAUST WILL BE FORGOTTEN AND BECOME ONLY A DATE IN HISTORY TOGETHER WITH OTHER GENOCIDES. I WILL DO ALL I CAN NOW TO PREVENT THIS.

'Shadow Jews' Outnumber Recognized Members of Tribe

From Asia to Zimbabwe, 14 Million Claim Jewish Blood

By Judy Maltz, November 07, 2014

A Teaching Moment:

Elaine Berg meets with Lemba children in Harare, Zimbabwe. COURTESY OF IRWIN AND ELAINE BERG

(Haaretz) — The number of people who believe they are descendants of the Jews or the ancient Israelites about equals the number of known Jews, those who are counted in official international censuses, an expert on Judaizing movements says.

Speaking at a Jerusalem conference, the British historian Tudor Parfitt suggested that what he called a shadow community of Jews numbers between 13.5 million and 14 million. In many cases, he said, this voluntary affiliation with the Jewish people is a relatively new phenomenon. Members of these newly identified Jewish communities could be found in places as diverse as northeastern India, Papua New Guinea, Nicaragua, the jungles of South America and southern and central Africa, he said. Many also can be found in black communities in the U.S.

Among these millions are communities in Asia and Africa that see themselves as descendants of the so-called lost tribes — 10 of the original 12 Hebrew tribes said to have been deported from the Kingdom of Israel after it was conquered by the Neo-Assyrian empire in about 700 BC. Among these, in turn, are the Bnei Menashe of northeastern India, hundreds of whom have immigrated to Israel in recent years, where they have undergone official conversion to Judaism and now live as Orthodox Jews.

The new identifiers also include millions of people, mainly in Latin America (primarily Brazil, Peru, Colombia and Nicaragua), who see themselves as descendants of Jews forced to convert — also known as Conversos or Bnai Anusim — during the Spanish Inquisition more than 500 years ago.

Several experts addressing the conference noted that the rise of evangelical Christianity in Latin America in recent years, at the expense of Catholicism, has made it easier for these people to identify as Jews and practice Judaism because Judaism dovetails with their own messianic ideology and their ideas of redemption.

Another group includes descendants of tribes who embraced Judaism in the past few hundred years but who claim no connection to the ancient Israelites, such as the Abuyadaya in Uganda. Yet another group includes people around the world who simply “feel Jewish” but claim no genetic or other connection to the Jewish people.

“Certainly globalization plays a very important role in this phenomenon,” explained Parfitt, “but I think one of the interesting, paradoxical things is the effect of the Holocaust and the way that people want to identify as Jews. You’d think that it would be the opposite, but in the case of both the Igbo and the Tutsi tribes in Africa, for example, they both had their own genocides, and they increasingly perceive themselves as Jews as a result of that.”

Parfitt, an emeritus professor of modern Jewish studies at the University of London’s School of Oriental and African Studies, is currently a distinguished professor at Florida International University, where he is director of its Center of Global Jewish Communities. An expert on the Jewish communities of Asia and Africa, he was one of the keynote speakers at a two-day conference on worldwide Judaizing movements held at the Van Leer Institute.

Shalva Weil of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, an expert on the lost Israelite tribes, said the growing worldwide phenomenon of “wannabe Jews,” as she termed it, was motivated partly by a desire for economic improvement since many of those claiming this status were members of impoverished and marginalized communities. She implied that as Jews they would be allowed to emigrate to Israel.

Still, she said that it was not the primary motivation and that globalization was a more important factor. In particular, she noted the tendency of young Israelis to explore remote corners of their world, including places where locals may not otherwise have had much interaction with Jews.

“Israel sends thousands of backpackers each year on post-army trips, where they come into contact with exotic and wonderful people and begin to see similarities with their own religion,” Weil noted.

Another factor explaining the growth of “wannabe Jews,” she said, was the worldwide rise of fundamentalism, and — together with it — the quest for messianism. “Eschatological visions have always been associated with the 10 lost tribes,” she said. While some of these communities, like the Bnai Menashe of Israel, have undergone official conversion processes so they could emigrate to Israel, not all of them have been driven to move to Israel as part of the realization of their Jewish identity.

“In Africa, among groups I work with, there doesn’t seem to be a large number that want to come to Israel,” noted Parfitt. “They love Israel, they support Israel, they want to study, but they’re not dying to come.”

On the other hand, he said, a community of tens of thousands of newly identified Jews in Papua New Guinea had expressed hopes of making such a move. “They happen to be outstanding rugby players, and if you’ve got any sense at all, you should bring them in,” said Parfitt.

The Nazi Who Saved Us From Kristallnacht Family's Quest to Find Officer Who Helped Them Escape Vienna

By Jill Werman Harris, November 07, 2014

The Wachses were just another middle class Jewish family living in Vienna. Moritz Wachs and his wife Henia Fach had two children, Ilie, who was born in 1927, and his sister Deborah, who followed in 1935. Moritz was a tailor who owned his own small tailor and clothing shop. His head tailor was a quiet German man in his 20’s named Alois. Considered a friend of the family, he often played soccer with Ilie.

After Nazi Germany annexed Austria in March 1938, the business was “aryanized” and Alois, a member of the Nazi Party, became its owner. One day in early November of 1938, Alois warned the family that “something terrible” was going to happen, and told them to remain quiet inside their apartment at Lilienbrunnngasse No. 7. “Keep everyone inside. You will not be touched,” said Alois. On November 9, in wide-spread pogroms that became known as “Kristallnacht” (“night of the crystal”), Jewish businesses and synagogues were vandalized and destroyed, almost 100 Jews were murdered, and thousands sent to concentration camps. Ilie and his sister recall vividly the terror, and then the relief, as Nazi boots marched past their door. The Wachs family remained safe, thanks to Alois.

Chinabound:

In the summer of 1939, the Wachs family was en route to Shanghai on board the Conte Biancamano. U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum, courtesy of Ilie Wacs

Around the same time, Alois secured several extensions for the family to stay in Vienna, as Moritz was stateless (he had come from Romanian and deserted the army) and Henia was from Poland. The German urged the family to leave Austria by August 31 of 1939, clearly knowing of the September 1 invasion of Poland, which marked the beginning of the Second World War and wartime conditions would make it more difficult to escape.

As instructed by Alois, the family made its way through Italy to Shanghai, a city that didn't require visas or passports to enter at that time. The Wachs's stayed in Shanghai for twelve years, living in the Jewish "Shanghai ghetto" in Hongkew with 18,000 refugees, who came primarily from Germany and Austria. It was there that they changed their name to Wacs. Wacs eventually went on to study art in Paris and became a fashion designer in New York. Deborah and the parents emigrated to Canada and New York. Deborah settled in San Francisco where she married, changing her last name to Strobin, and devoted her time to philanthropy. All family members who remained in Vienna were killed.

The siblings rarely spoke of their escape, their life in Shanghai or Alois, of whom they never heard again. They also do not know what happened to the tailor shop.

That is until 1997, on Wacs's 70th birthday, when he prodded his sister to take a trip with him to the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum in Washington, DC. "I was reluctant to go," she said. "I didn't want to be reminded of anything. I never even wanted to talk about it."

In an exhibition on Jewish refugees in China, Strobin saw a photo of herself, aged 5, with two other Jewish children. "For me, it was pure horror. I was so shocked to see a picture of myself that I had never seen before," she said. She concluded the Japanese, who at the time had governed and occupied Shanghai as a foreign concession, used the photos as propaganda.

The experience triggered a desire to write a book about their lives. "An Uncommon Journey" was published by Barricade Books in 2011. Wacs was unwilling to search for Alois as he feared to find out that the man who illustrated such great humanity to his own family may have acted in polar opposite to so many others. Said Strobin: "Ilie never wanted to see Alois as anything but good."

Jane Rohman, whose public relations firm has guided the book since its publication, said that without fail, if Strobin or Wacs lectured, visited a school or appeared at a museum, inevitably someone would ask, "What happened to Alois?" Curiosity from audience members and readers fueled an interest in finding the German who helped the Jewish family.

Late last year Wacs exhibited a collection of his paintings at the Museum of Tolerance in New York. At the end of the exhibit Rohman went out on a limb and commissioned a large poster that read, "Help us find Alois."

When Rohman and others were hanging the installation at the Museum of Tolerance in preparation of its opening, David Schroeder, a professor of criminal justice and forensic sciences at the University of New Haven in Connecticut, along with several of his students, passed through the museum. After he met Wacs and learned about Alois, Schroeder and a colleague decided to create a one-credit course for the following semester, aptly titled, "Finding Alois."

With scant information, the students threw themselves into social networking, creating a Facebook page, Finding Alois, and pursuing leads coming in from as far away as Australia.

But as the semester came to an end in May, the effort had not yielded Alois's whereabouts. Nonetheless, all the students in the Finding Alois class, even those who were graduating, committed to continue the search, as the class is not being continued. As for Schroeder, he is looking for concrete evidence. Right now, he is seeking access to the Austrian government's tax records. Only there, he said, can Mortiz Wachs's employee(s) for 1937 or 1938 be found. "Once we get that name, I think the barrel will just roll."

Earlier this year, a Jewish-American man sent the siblings a photograph of an aging, lanky man in his 90's, sitting in a wheel chair. The sender said he had read the story of the search for Alois on the "Finding Alois" Facebook page and recognized in the description a soft spoken, German man, who worked for him as a for twenty-five years beginning in the 1960s. He was known as Al. While the two mostly had a phone relationship, the Jewish man remembers hearing that Al had been a Nazi. The businessman never asked Al about it because he had never displayed any anti-Semitism, despite knowing that his boss was Jewish.

Because of the sensitive nature of the search, neither Strobin nor Schroeder can give specifics about this lead.

Wacs, upon seeing the photograph, said that there was something familiar about the man but he could not tell for sure if it was Alois. Wacs died of lung cancer on September 7.

His family and friends say that Wacs always came back to Alois, giving considerable thought to the context of what was happening in Germany in 1938 when a Nazi German came forward to help a Jew.

Rohman remembers Wacs asking: What is it in one person that makes them do that? "Even if we never find Alois," she says, "what is it in one human being versus another who sees injustice being done and does something about it?" And morally, what does it mean if he then went on to do some awful things as well?

The U.S. Tried to Arrest Roman Polanski at Jewish Museum Opening

By Gabe Friedman, November 6, 2014, 1:47pm

The United States government still really wants to arrest director Roman Polanski — and what better place to catch him than the Polish Jewish history museum?

Polanski, who was arrested (but never sentenced) for sexually assaulting a 13-year old girl in 1977, was attending the grand opening of Museum of the History of Polish Jews in Warsaw last Tuesday when U.S. authorities contacted Polish officials. The Holocaust survivor was questioned by police but not arrested.

"From the point of view of Polish history," this attempt by the U.S. "showed absolute ignorance," Tomasz Nalecz, an advisor to the Polish president Bronislaw Komorowski, told the BBC.

The U.S. first tried to extradite Polanski in Switzerland in 2009, 32 years after his alleged crime, while he was being given a tribute award at the Zurich Film Festival. He was arrested and held in a Swiss detention center for 67 days but he was eventually freed after he posted a bail of $4.5 million.

Polanski's mother was murdered in Auschwitz. Polanski, who directed classic films such as "Rosemary's Baby," "Chinatown," and the Oscar-winner "The Pianist," was arrested in Los Angeles back in 1977 after he allegedly had sex with then 13-year old Samantha Gailey (now Samantha Geimer). The details of the case are still messy — and more than a little disturbing. During a probationary period, he fled to England to avoid a trial, and he has lived in Europe ever since.

In 2011, Polanski apologized for the act in the documentary, "Roman Polanski, A Film Memoir." Geimer had already publicly forgiven Polanski and stated that having him come back to the U.S. for a trial would create a media circus that would make things worse.

The latest arrest attempt looks especially awkward as Polanski has been to Poland several times in recent years. In fact, his next movie, about the infamous 1894 Alfred Dreyfus affair (during which a French Jewish officer was wrongfully accused of treason, and was later pardoned) is currently set to film in Poland.
